REMANUFACTURING IS THE ULTIMATE FORM OF RECYCLING

FEATURES AND BENEFITS

Processes which are designed to meet or exceed O.E. specifications.

- Engine blocks are magnafluxed, cylinders bored and precision-honed, and main saddles line-honed to exacting O.E. specifications.
- Camshaft bearings are line-bored for accurate center-to-center clearance.
- Engine blocks and cylinder heads are precision surfaced to insure proper sealing.
- Cylinder heads are magnafluxed or dye checked and machined for three-angle valve seats.
- Crankshafts are stress-relieved, precision ground and micro-polished for optimum durability and surface finish.
- Camshafts are precision ground or replaced with new to maintain the O.E. profile.
- Each engine is precision "hot run" tested to guarantee you the best engine.

PRECISION TESTING

What is "Hot Run Testing"?

It's the only way to be certain that a remanufactured engine will perform as expected.

Here's what we do:

- Manifolds, tin ware and oil pumps are installed.
- Engine is filled with coolant and oil, then started using propane. Why propane? Because it's colorless and odorless and leaves no residue in the engine.

- While running, the engine is visually inspected for proper mechanical operation, checked for fluid leaks, valve train motion, excessive noise, oil pressure, and oil and water temperature.
- Once the engine passes our critical inspection, all fluids are evacuated, the engine cooled, and immediately wrapped in an air tight bag for cleanliness.

Why is Hot Run Testing Important?

We don't expect your customers to test our products. With hot run testing you can feel confident the engines your customers receive are the best in the industry. We test our engines so your customers don't have to!
